1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: claims are allowable because the prior art does not adequately disclose a navigation system comprising communication between end user electronic devices, a customer-interface server and navigation –services server whereby the navigation-services server formulates language independent reply messages to query messages provided by the customer-interface server from end user device, and the customer-interface server receives the language-independent reply messages from the navigation-services server and sends responses to the end user devices, the language independent messages being limited to spoken human languages, or corresponding language (written), and not including format, computer or machine languages, since appellant has argued that the format "language" disclosed by Lappenbusch is different than the claimed language independence, which refers to English, Spanish, French, etc., and the prior art does not adequately disclose sending responses to requests for navigation services from a customer-interface server, whereby the responses pertain to route information, since appellant has argued that the route information of Hayashi is transmitted by server 12, not customer-interface server 22, even though Hayashi does teach transmission of navigation service data from server 22 to end user 1.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
